 DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

House is dated on log exposure 1795. This home is log with clapboard covering. The original house was rectangular in shape. Additions have been added to the east, south and west sides. On the west end or front of the house, a porch has been added. The south has a continuation of this porch with a small bedroom and dining room added. The east or rear of the building has had a small office built on. The original dwelling has a basement under it. The floor of the first story is supported by several log joists. Cellar has a bulkhead entrance.

The house is two-and-a-half stories and has mixed stone and brick foundation. There are three fireplaces in this dwelling all located on the west wall or front of the house. Everyone was originally brick but the fireplaces on the first and second floors are now covered with fieldstone.

There is one stairway from the first to the second story. It has a handrail and is an open string staircase. There are simple brackets and plain balusters and the stairway is geometrical. A second stairway exists from the second floor to the attic. There used to be a stairway from the first floor to the cellar but it has been torn out. The door to this stairway still exists and it has a nice brass box lock. This door is original (?) and is four panel.

The home has a gable roof with box cornices. The windows on the original section are 6/6 and the house is five bays by two bays. The floors are made of wide flooring and have been painted a dull brown.

The clapboard on the exterior is in bad shape and in need of paint. The fireplaces all need repointing and the log floor joists are in bad shape. The house is sinking in the rear section.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

The home is one of the earliest buildings in the town and is surrounded by pretty lawn with beautiful shrubbery. Some of the older residents say that the stage used to stop at the house, but no proof of this can be found.
